

Holiday Family Tablecloth

The holiday tablecloth is something my family has used for Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter - holidays that we are together for. It is made of heavy muslin cloth. Everybody writes something to either comment on or something they are thankful for from that year or something to remember from the holiday. We date our comments and sign it. Signing can be a signature or anything that everybody knows is your specialized way of writing or drawing. We have been doing this for about 10 years and it really brings back memories of some of the holidays in the past. It is especially helpful in remembering things that were going on at that time and memories of good times and events for which we were then and still are thankful for. Sometimes it can be tearful when reading comments from someone who has passed away, but it also brings great memories of them.
